

Parzival is one of the great myths of Britain. It is set against a landscape of forest, lakes, castles, Arthur's court in Camelot, pavilions of knights, the heat of battles and the edges and margins of exclusion. Under the shade of an old story like this one, romance, exile, chivalry, acute failure and enduring love make their way in a journey not unlike our own. A quest that speaks from hundreds of years ago to now.

The story will be told in three parts each approximately an hour.

There will be a fifteen minute and then a half hour break. Drinks and dessert will complement supper you bring for yourself.
